

WHEN

- Jan. 18, 2021
- 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. (ET)

REGISTER

- <https://nku.eventsair.com/s/hcce/teaching>

COST

- Free

WHO SHOULD ATTEND

- Kentucky educators, including P-12 teachers, principals and other administrators.
- College/university faculty and students with an interest in teaching this topic.
- Community leaders and education advocates.

TEACHING BLACK HISTORY AND CULTURE A WORKSHOP FOR EDUCATORS

This professional development day for Kentucky educators is hosted by the Thomas D. Clark Foundation, which provides support to the University Press of Kentucky, a statewide consortium of universities, colleges and historical societies.

The Press publishes books about the history and culture of Kentucky and supports scholarship about Kentucky and by Kentucky scholars. The Press published The African American Encyclopedia in 2015 and has an extensive civil rights catalog.

This workshop will be virtual and combine webinar, video and live streaming.

The Clark Foundation, named for the late historian Dr. Thomas D. Clark, is hosting this professional development day as part of its commitment to scholarship and history – and with a deep belief that an understanding black history and culture is fundamental to understanding our state’s history and our nation’s.

Questions? Address them to Clark Board Member Mark Neikirk at neikirkm1@nku.edu.